

Acknowledgements

This book is a slightly revised, but not updated, version of a PhD thesis submitted to the Faculty of Law at the University of Basel in spring 2009. The thesis contributed to the individual project <Constitutionalism and Multilayered Governance> which formed part of the Swiss National Centre of Research (NCCR) <World Trade Law: From Fragmentation to Coherence>. It was financed by the Swiss National Funds. I would like to express my gratitude to the leaders of this project, Prof. Dr. Anne Peters, University of Basel, and Prof. Dr. Klaus Armingeon, University of Bern. Appreciation goes out also for the Director of the NCCR, Prof. Dr. Thomas Cottier, World Trade Institute, University of Bern. Moreover, I would like to thank all colleagues of the NCCR, especially Dr. Karolina Milewicz, for various discussions. Likewise, I wish to thank Prof. Dr. Daniel Thürer and Prof. Dr. Stephan Breitenmoser for serving as members of the thesis committee.

I am deeply indebted to my supervisor and teacher, Prof. Dr. Anne Peters, for her expertise, understanding, and patience at every stage of my research. She is an excellent teacher and mentor. Her insightful comments, her vast knowledge, her motivation, and her encouragement contributed a lot to the success of the thesis.

Many colleagues at the University of Basel helped make this book happen. Many thanks go to Nina Blum, Michelle Cottier, Beatrice Grubenmann, Daniel Högger, Radha Ivory, Claudia Jeker, Myriam Jung, Zhanna Hördegen-Kozhamberdiyeva, Lukas Musumeci, Vera Nägeli, Thore Neumann, Stefan Suter, Egle Svilpaite, and Daniela Thurnherr. Special thanks go to Alissa Palumbo for proofreading.

Last but not least, I owe deep gratitude to my family and close friends for help, patience, and assistance. Thank you, Mum, Nicole, and Denise for constant support and encouragement. Thank you, Maria, Claudia, Petra, and Daniela for making alleged impossibilities possible. Thank you, Rose, for all your care and wisdom.

A special and warm expression of love is reserved for Markus: I owe him <twenty special thanks>!

Summary of Contents

Contents	IX
Abbreviations	XIII
Table of cases	XV
Introduction	1
Part I: The sovereigntist account of public interest	3
1 Public interest and common good	3
2 Reflecting domestic public interest in international law	16
Part II: The constitutionalist account of public interest	23
3 The postwar account of public interest in international law	24
4 Adjudicating exception clauses in human rights law	27
5 Adjudicating exception clauses in trade law	77
Part III: The communal account of public interest	133
6 Overcoming state sovereignty in international law	134
7 Public interest law-making	139
8 Public interest law enforcing	167
9 Public interest law adjudication	185
10 Communal public interest and the growth of International Organizations	193
11 Human rights protection and communal public interest	200
Part IV: The return of sovereigntist public interest	211
12 Changing the scene: public interest in private international law	211
13 Towards a general public policy exception in public international law? . .	216
Conclusion	225
Bibliography	228

Contents

Summary of Contents	VII
Abbreviations	XIII
Table of cases	XV
Introduction	1
Part I: The sovereigntist account of public interest	3
1 Public interest and common good	3
1.1 Ways of thinking about the common good	3
1.2 Reason of state	8
1.3 Totalitarian common good	10
1.4 What do national constitutions say about public interest?	12
2 Reflecting domestic public interest in international law	16
2.1 Why the state is seen to be a unitary actor	16
2.2 Domestic public interest is enshrined in the historic clausula rebus principle	19
2.3 Public interest and defences of non-compliance	21
Part II: The constitutionalist account of public interest	23
3 The postwar account of public interest in international law	24
3.1 Containing national public interest through international law	24
3.2 Why judicial review is so important	25
4 Adjudicating exception clauses in human rights law	27
4.1 Some historical preliminaries to human rights law	27
4.2 Do derogation clauses allow for escaping human rights obligations?	32
4.3 Which public interests may limit human rights?	39
4.3.1 Public interest and general interest	40
4.3.2 National security, safety and territorial integrity	46
4.3.3 Public morals	49
4.3.4 Public order or prevention of disorder and crime	51
4.3.5 Other public interests	54
4.4 Are all public interests individual interests?	57
4.5 Are human rights bodies supranational constitutional courts?	67
5 Adjudicating exception clauses in trade law	77
5.1 Public interest defences in EU trade law	77
5.1.1 Public morality	82
5.1.2 Public policy	83
	IX

5.1.3	Public security	88
5.1.4	Human health and life	89
5.1.5	The protection of consumers, of the environment and of human rights	90
5.2	Which public interests allow exceptions from GATT and GATS? . .	93
5.2.1	Public morals and public order	96
5.2.2	Public health	98
5.2.3	Exhaustible resources	100
5.2.4	Secure compliance with domestic laws and regulation	101
5.2.5	National security	102
5.3	What additional requirements must be met?	115
5.4	The case of public interest in the TRIPS Agreement	123
5.5	Findings on part two	129
Part III: The communal account of public interest		133
6	Overcoming state sovereignty in international law	134
6.1	Why state sovereignty has recently come under pressure	134
6.2	The idea of an international community	137
7	Public interest law-making	139
7.1	How references to jus cogens reflect the idea of <higher values> . . .	139
7.2	The idea of public interest treaties	146
7.3	The global public interest in the commons	154
7.4	Is there an international legislation?	162
8	Public interest law enforcing	167
8.1	Is there an actio popularis in international law?	167
8.2	Should the international community intervene?	177
9	Public interest law adjudication	185
9.1	Universal jurisdiction and compulsory jurisdiction	185
9.2	How the idea of a communal public interest affects treaty interpretation	188
10	Communal public interest and the growth of International Organizations	193
10.1	Historic evidence: the case of the European Community	193
10.2	How the Security Council gained importance	196
11	Human rights protection and communal public interest	200
11.1	Why an international public interest is ambiguous	200
11.2	The emergence of a <reason of the international community>	209
Part IV: The return of sovereigntist public interest		211
12	Changing the scene: public interest in private international law	211
12.1	How private international law relates to public international law . . .	211
12.2	How public interest is reflected in the public policy exception	213

13 Towards a general public policy exception in public international law? . .	216
13.1 How national courts rely on public policy	218
13.2 The use of public policy by the ECJ	220
Conclusion	225
Bibliography	228